ASIDE SUFFRAGE

Try to Slip in Motion at Close European Governments to be of Session, But They Talked Too Much and a Suffraget Overheard.

BY MARGARET TOBIN. Staff Correspondent.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 25 .- An attempt by the anti-suffragists in the convention of the State Federation of Women's clubs to present a motion Friday at the last session of the convention setting aside the suffrage resolution adopted the day before, was foiled by the vigilance of the suffragists who got wind of their design. A handful of the anti's put their heads together Friday morning and on the subject," was the only answer determined to slip in a motion near the close of the session when the confusion would prevent the delegates from realizing just what was going on.

One of the most thrilling stories of the time of Napoleon, perhaps the most fascinating period in all history, had been done into fiction in the story, "THE MAR-SHAL" by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, which will start next week serially in the News-Times. It is quite different in character from "The Red Button, which was recently concluded in this newspaper, but will equally hold the interest and the sympathy of its readers. DON'T MISS A CHAPTER.

Bessie Klaer Sears Underly was the daughter of the late Otto Klaer, a former druggist of South Bend, they gave her possession of the $10,000 estate and ended a seven day trial. Mrs. Savage, the mother, was responsible for the finding of the jury. Mrs. Underly is the daughter of Mrs. Emma Savage, who at the time of her birth, was the wife of Oliver Sears. The mother and Klaer were friends before and after her first marringe, and it was of these relations that Mrs. Savage testified for her

There were originally three plaintiffs, Mrs. Underly, Clifford and Russell Klaer, Clifford's name was withdrawn early in the proceedings. Although Mrs. Savage testified that he was, the jury was not convinced that Russell was a child of Klaer's. The defendants were Adam Klaer, the father, and near relatives of Otto Klaer. The jury, in its verdict, found that they had no interest in the case ind quieted the title of Mrs. Underly. The climax of the case lay in the finding of the jury that Mrs. Underly was the acknowledged daughter of Klaer. This was largely done through the testimony of the mother, Mrs. Savage. It was brought out in the evidence that Otto Klaer was never married. The state law gives estates to children born out of wedlock, if
